A familiar face among the Alberta Theatre Projects team, Ms. Porteous was Alberta Theatre Projects' Festival Dramaturg from 1998 to 2006 where she oversaw the world premieres of over 30 new Canadian plays as part of the annual Enbridge playRites Festival. Other directing credits with Alberta Theatre Projects include The Syringa Tree by Pamela Gien (remounted in 2008 due to popular demand), Pinocchio by The Old Trout Puppet Workshop in collaboration with Vanessa Porteous (2004), Plan B by Michael Healey (2003), Proof by David Auburn (2002), The Hobbit adapted by Kim Selody (2001) and Respectable by Ron Chambers (2001).

Ms. Porteous' career is distinguished by her ability to excel in many styles of material including puppetry, theatre with music, and recently, opera. We were looking for a risk taker, an audience and community builder, and someone who would ensure that Alberta Theatre Projects produces and creates plays that are relevant and important to both Calgarians and Canadians."

Managing Director Greg Epton elaborates: "Ms. Porteous' acclaimed and wide-ranging body of work as a director and dramaturg complements the existing height of excellence set by Mr. White and the rest of the team at Alberta Theatre Projects. Her appointment launches a new era, one that will honour the company's commitment to producing a season of celebrated contemporary theatre, taking a national leadership role in the development of new Canadian plays and making an enduring contribution to community by delivering our LEGACY (Lifelong Education and Growth for Artists, Community and Youth) Program."

In accepting the position, Ms. Porteous comments: "For me, Alberta Theatre Projects is the most appealing theatre company in Canada - thanks to its incredible staff; its beautiful, charming performance space, the Martha Cohen Theatre; and above all, its commitment to theatre that is directly engaged with the times we live in - theatre about being alive right now. I feel that nothing could be more exciting for an audience, nor more important for a theatre company, than that. I am so, so honoured to be entrusted with the next phase of its life, and I really look forward to the adventure."

In endorsing Vanessa Porteous, Artistic Director Bob White says: "We are thrilled to welcome Vanessa back to Alberta Theatre Projects.
